NEW for 2023

Seeding the State Champs for the New England Wrestling Tournament

The following seeding process attempts to separate State Champion wrestlers who are returning NE place winners, such that it will reduce the chances of the top wrestlers meeting in the quarters or semis (as opposed to the finals).

1. Only the 6 state champions will be considered for seeding. All others will be placed according to one of the pre-determined brackets that do an excellent job of separating wrestlers from the same state.
2. The only state champions who will be considered for seeding are those current champs who are prior-year NE place winners OR any current state champion who, during the current HS season, has beaten a current state champion from another NE state who was a prior-year NE place winner.
3. Some weight classes may wind up with 2 or 3 seeds, while others may have none (or could perhaps have even 5 or 6). Again, the goal is separation, so please don't become overly focused on whether the "top seed" is on line 1 or on the 2nd seed line...as long as 2 is on the same bracket side as #3 (and not on #1 side), and 2 & 3 would meet in semis, not quarters...
4. While a weight class may not be fully seeded 1-6, it will also be the goal such that the top 2 seeded wrestlers in any weight are not paired in the same quarterfinal bracket as any of the other state champions (essentially attempting to ensure that any state champ is placed on what would be a 1-6 seeding, whereby a 5th or 6th "seed" would not see the #1 or #2 seed in the quarters, but rather might face a 3 or 4 seed.
5. No other tournament placings will be considered for seeding purposes, including Fargo or NHSCA. Only regular season meetings during the current high school season between current state champions will be considered for purposes of jumping above a higher seeded state champ.
6. Seeding Criteria:
 - A. First criteria will be previous year's NE tourney placement. The higher the finish, the higher the seed.
 - B. Only in the case of a tie (equal finish in prior year's NE tourney at different weight classes), the first tie-breaker will be head-to-head. If still tied, the only common opponents that will be considered are the other state champs from current season. If still tied, the tiebreaker will go to the wrestler who was at the higher weight class in prior year's NE tournament.
 - C. Once any of the 6 state champs who were NE place winners from the past season are seeded according to #6 above, the opportunity for any other state champ who was NOT a previous year NE place winner to improve their seed by virtue of having beaten a seeded state champ (therefore, a prior year NE placer) during the current season (without also having lost to that wrestler, unless such loss still maintained a "2 out of 3" advantage). Such wrestler may move above the other state champ that was defeated provided they have not lost to any other seeded state champs that are currently seeded below the wrestler who was beaten. In such event, the highest said wrestler may be seeded will be above any other state champions who were NOT seeded according to aforementioned criteria.

8. Finally, at this point, direct flips may occur for any of those who are now seeded who have beaten a seeded wrestler above them, using the same process that was used in #7.

9. Once all wrestlers who MAY be seeded are now SEEDED, it is time to select a seeding chart from the existing master grid (using options A-N) that best achieves the desired separation. If more than one plan meets the desired criteria, a random draw will be conducted to choose the chart. In the event that the number of wrestlers who are seeded at any weight class exceeds the capability of an exact match within the 14 charts from the grid, the preference will be given to the one that best separates the greater number of the top seeds, starting with 1 and 2 and continuing down. For example, if 5 wrestlers are seeded, and 1 chart works for seeds 1, 2 and 3, and another works for 1, 5 and 6, the one that works for 1,2 and 3 will be chosen. Again, the key is separation on the seeding chart (and not a concern with top half or bottom half of bracket directly corresponding to #1 and #2 seeds, despite how that may confuse fans).

11. If no returning wrestlers are “seed able” based on the criteria of being a returning NE place winner from the previous season, the grid selected will be the one that corresponds with the weight class, as we will continue to move the grid backwards one weight class each season.

12. If there is a scratch of a state champ who was seeded according to the criteria above, the remaining state champs who met seeding criteria will be “bumped up”, with the 2nd place finisher who is replacing that state’s champion seeded below the other 5 state champions, without the ability to improve seed.
